

Frequently Asked Questions

How long can I serve as a student organization advisor?

- An advisor's term is outlined in each registered student organization's constitution. You may serve as many consecutive terms as the organization allows, so long as you meet the advisor eligibility requirements.

Is there training and support for student organization advisors?

- Yes. The ONLINE RESOURCE AND COMPLIANCE CERTIFICATION occurs before your organization is approved. We also will offer a variety of sessions for you to grow in your role.

What is my liability for serving as a student organization's advisor?

- In general, student organization advisors are not liable for the behavior of a student organization UNLESS the advisor had prior knowledge of the group's risky behavior(s) and failed to report it, and/or either condoned/participated in the activity(ies). If you have questions or concerns related to a student organization's activities, please contact CSI immediately: (312) 413-5070.

I'm classified as "Campus Security Authority" (CSA) and "Responsible Employee." What does this mean in terms of my student organization?

- As a student organization advisor you are designated as an individual with significant responsibilities for students and campus activities. You are responsible for reporting sexual harassment and sexual violence, as well as criminal offenses and violence, known to you to the appropriate campus administrators in a timely manner.

How many organizations can I advise at one time?

- There is no limit to the amount of student groups you can advise; however, we encourage you to limit the number of organizations you advise to three or less to ensure you can provide appropriate attention to each.

What is the time commitment for serving as an advisor?

- Based on the expectations, activities and needs of the student group, your time commitment will vary. It's helpful to identify your responsibilities and availability to compare them to the activities and needs of the student group(s) you advise to determine how much time they'll require.
